

Environmental Policy

Wexford Arts Centre is located in the centre of Wexford town, and contains a theatre, gallery space and a café. Our aim is to deliver an arts programme of excellence for life and for all with emphasis on contemporary arts practice, participation and education.

As with all organisations, we recognise that our activities do involve negative environmental impacts. It is our aim to minimise these by;

- Complying with environmental law
- Measuring and monitoring our environmental performance
- Actively seeking to continuously improve our performance
- Minimising the risk of pollution from our operations
- Encouraging our suppliers, customers and other stakeholders to do likewise.

Our most significant direct environmental impacts arise from the electricity and gas we consume. In order to minimise this, we take steps to ensure that equipment and lighting is only operating when required, and that energy-efficient lighting is in general use.

We routinely monitor our electricity and gas usage and we operate a segregation system to ensure our waste is recycled wherever possible and landfill waste is minimised.

In all our activities, we aim to be an environmentally responsible member of the community we serve.
